In 1968 the metal window winder handle was replaced by a black plastic handle that was designed to break off in an accident to minimize injury. We have reproduced this handle with the characteristic concave "chrome" insert into the knob. There is a thin sheet of blue film covering the chrome insert which protects it. Remove the blue film after the handle has been installed.

Note that the 1974 change point is approximate. Up to that point, a chrome spacer (1b) and screw (1c) were used with the black handle. From '74 on a special black screw (ZKC3317) was used which had a large, oversized head, essentially combining the spacer with the screw. These are no longer available new, and should be reused if you still have them. If they have been lost, we offer a black replacement screw with a black flat washer which will work.
